A President’s Guide to the Clery Act
The Crime Awareness and Campus Security Act, more commonly known as the Clery Act, is contained (along with other security-related disclosure requirements) in section 485 of the Higher Education Act, codified at 20 U.S.C. § 1092. It requires colleges and universities to keep records and report annually on the nature, date, time, and place of crimes occurring on campus, including hate crimes. It also prescribes a number of security-related protocols for emergency response procedures, timely notifications for on-campus crimes and missing students, fire incident reporting, and the like. It is one of the most frequently modified sections of the Higher Education Act, having been amended five times since it was signed into law in 1990.

The requirements of the Clery Act are complex, and require significant coordination and organization among campus officials and administrators. All campuses aspire to provide a safe and secure environment for students and staff, and having solid procedures in place well in advance of a crime or other emergency is imperative to that effort. In the aftermath of a crisis on campus, one of the most common questions is whether the institution properly complied with all state and federal requirements, particularly the Clery Act. Failure to comply with the Clery Act can result in large fines for an institution (up to $27,500 per violation), suspension, or limiting of Title IV funding. In addition, when crime reporting or other safety procedures are mishandled, significant public scrutiny can result, and can cause serious reputational damage to an institution and its senior leadership. By contrast, sound procedures for handling crises can mitigate tragic outcomes, not to mention a public relations nightmare. Ultimately, when the health and safety of students and others are at stake, there is no room for error.

This guide provides an overview for university presidents or other senior administrators who, even though they may not have direct oversight of Clery Act compliance, will be held responsible for ensuring that the act’s requirements are met. It is not meant to capture all of the law’s specific requirements or substitute for any guidance or advice rendered by the U.S. Department of Education. We encourage you to consult your legal counsel to ensure comprehensive compliance by your campus.

What You Can Do Right Now:
First, familiarize yourself with the basic requirements of the law. (A detailed exploration of the requirements and their implications for campuses is included in this document.) Compliance is cumbersome and complex, largely as a result of the changes to the law over time and the 197-page Department of Education handbook released in February 2011. You can make a campus-wide commitment to compliance by making it a priority and allocating resources accordingly.

Second, appoint a single person or small committee of senior safety administrators to serve as your Clery Compliance Officer(s) on campus. By its terms, Clery does not dictate that any particular campus officer or group of officers serve in a compliance function, but because non-compliance with the act can result in significant negative consequences, a well-trained person or small group focused on Clery compliance will be of great benefit to your institution. In addition, setting up a clear chain of command is critical, including the responsibilities of each person and how to communicate among the group. Advance planning will be invaluable to you in emergency situations.

Finally, as a rule of thumb, you should always err on the side of caution when deciding whether a particular incident or event is Clery-reportable; the negative consequences of failure to notify or report can be costly.
1) CAMPUS CRIME REPORTING

By October 1 of each year, institutions are required to publish and disseminate an annual crime report providing crime statistics occurring on campus for the current calendar year and two preceding years, and a description of certain security-related policies.

In determining whether a crime should be included in the annual crime report, institutions should ask the following three questions:

- a. Was the crime reported to a Campus Security Authority (CSA)?
- b. Is the crime one of the 12 Clery-reportable offenses?
- c. Did the crime occur in a Clery-reportable geographic area?

In preparing this report, institutions are required to request crime statistics from all CSAs as well as local law enforcement agencies with jurisdiction on campus. It is the responsibility of a CSA to report any crimes they become aware of to the institution’s reporting structure, which is typically the public safety or police department. Given other Clery requirements, such as the requirement to provide timely notices about crimes, and notification of emergency situations, it is important that CSA reporting be performed promptly.

Campus Security Authorities

A CSA is any institutional employee with significant responsibility for student and campus activities or building relationships with students.
In determining whether an employee is a CSA, focus on the “function” of an employee. Examples of CSAs include campus security officers, residential advisors, dean of students staff, athletic director, and team coaches. Additional examples can be found in the Department of Education’s handbook. Presidents and senior officials can also be CSAs.

Institutions should conduct an assessment of their professional and student employees and collect a comprehensive list of all CSAs. Preparation of this list is critical to the smooth functioning of your crime reporting and emergency notification procedures, and it is also typically required by the Department of Education when it conducts an audit.

It is important to note that CSAs differ from Clery Compliance Officers. CSAs include all personnel in public safety, security, student advisory, and similar roles. Clery Compliance Officers are those individuals with specific responsibility for ensuring institutional compliance with all elements of the Clery Act. Although there is no mandate that institutions identify specific Clery Compliance Officers, it can be a helpful way to streamline compliance.

Clery-Reportable Offenses

The Clery Act requires reporting on the following offenses:

I. murder;
II. sex offenses, forcible or nonforcible;
III. robbery;
IV. aggravated assault;
V. burglary;
VI. motor vehicle theft;
VII. manslaughter;
VIII. arson;
IX. arrests or persons referred for campus disciplinary action for liquor law violations;
X. arrests or persons referred for campus disciplinary action for drug-related violations;
XI. arrests or persons referred for campus disciplinary action for weapons possession; and
XII. hate crimes, which for Clery Act purposes include any crime listed in points (I) through (VIII) and, as of 2008, larceny-theft; simple assault; intimidation; and destruction, damage, or vandalism of property in which the victim is intentionally selected because of his or her actual or perceived race, gender, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity, or disability.

Geographic Area

The Clery Act requires each institution to disclose crime statistics that occur on three types of property: campus, noncampus buildings or property, and public property areas. An institution may choose to publish a map in their annual security report depicting the boundaries of these areas. Even if it does not publish the map, officials should make certain that all departments on campus are working from the same internal Clery map. This ensures that everyone counting statistics for the institution uses the same geographic boundaries. As long as the map is accurate, the institution can then limit the reporting of crime statistics to those areas defined by the map. The geographic requirement is complex; it is important to pay close attention to the details of each definition and refer to the Department of Education’s Clery Act handbook for guidance.

“Campus” is defined as buildings or property owned or controlled by the institution within the same reasonably contiguous geographic area and used by the institution in a manner related to the institution’s educational purpose, including residence halls. It also includes property in that contiguous area owned by the institution but controlled by another person, if that property is used by students and supports institutional purposes (e.g. food or retail vendor). Branch campuses and geographically disconnected administrative divisions or schools would be considered separate campuses for the purposes of reporting. “Public property” is property that is located within the same reasonably contiguous geographic areas of the campus, like a sidewalk, street or public parking lot, that is adjacent to a facility owned or controlled by the institution for purposes related to the institution’s educational purposes. Crimes occurring on “public property” must also be reported in the crime statistics. A “noncampus building or property” is one that is owned or controlled by a school-recognized student organization, or one that is owned or controlled by the institution and used by students or by the institution for education-related purposes and that is not within the same reasonably contiguous geographic area of the campus. Again, crimes occurring on “noncampus property” must be reported. Please note, however, that incidents occurring on public property adjacent to “noncampus buildings or property” need not be included.

2) TIMELY WARNING NOTICES
The Clery Act requires institutions to communicate a serious crime or emergency to the campus community in a timely way. This is a particularly important piece of the law, since the vast majority of complaints triggering Department of Education Clery audits are at least partially related to a failure to issue these notices. Timely warning notices must be considered for all Clery Act crimes that are: (1) reported to CSAs or local police, and (2) determined by the institution to represent a serious or continuing threat to students and employees.

When the Department of Education conducts a Clery Act audit, and when the media focuses its attention on an institution, they will do so with the benefit of hindsight—they will know all of the facts of a particular crime that occurred on campus. Campus leaders, however, must conduct the assessment in real time and make an immediate decision as to whether there is a serious or continuing threat to the community. You may ask: am I certain there is no further danger to the campus community? If the answer is not definitively “yes,” you will likely choose to distribute a notice to the community, and this clearly is the safest course of action for purposes of Clery compliance.

These notices must be substantively accurate, and specific enough to be helpful. Be careful not to downplay the incident; your obligation is to warn the community, and so you should communicate specifically what happened. The details of an incident will become public information, so it is imperative to be transparent about events from the start.

3) EMERGENCY NOTIFICATIONS AND RESPONSE TESTING
Your institution must distribute immediate emergency notification warnings to the campus community upon confirmation of a dangerous situation on campus involving an immediate threat to the health or safety of students or staff regardless of whether a crime is involved.
Examples of emergencies that would warrant such a notification include: an active shooter on campus, a riot, a bomb threat, a tornado, a fire, and similar situations involving active and palpable threats.

Every institution must conduct yearly tests of emergency response and follow-through activities designed for assessment and evaluation of emergency plans and capabilities.

The Department of Education expects representatives from all agencies that would be summoned to respond to an actual emergency, as outlined in your institution’s emergency response plan or emergency procedures, to participate in the exercise portion of the test. This means at least one representative from each key department on campus should participate; you must also invite representatives from your local response agencies, such as local police and fire and emergency medical personnel, to participate as well.

4) Fire Safety and Missing Persons

Universities that have on-campus residential facilities must publish a fire safety report, including fire statistics and a description of each fire safety system, as well as seven fire-related policy statements. Each institution must also have a stated procedure for gathering missing person contact information from students living in residential facilities. The mere collection of emergency contact information is not sufficient—nstitutions must have a written procedure regarding the handling of missing persons reports, including identification of administrators to whom missing persons should be reported, and procedures for immediate referral to the institution’s police or security department. Moreover, this document must give students the option to identify a specific contact person in case he or she is reported missing. If after an investigation, the student is determined to be missing, the institution must make two and possibly three mandatory notifications, depending on whether they are over or under 18 years of age.

5) Notice to Current and Prospective Students and Employees

Institutions must provide a notice of availability of the annual crime and fire safety reports to all current and prospective students and employees. The notice must include at least four elements: a statement of the report’s availability, a statement that a paper copy will be
6) POLICY STATEMENTS

The annual crime and fire safety reports must also contain statements about your policies, procedures, and practices. Campuses must include statements of current campus policies and procedures on reporting criminal actions or other emergencies occurring on campus, making timely warning reports to members of the campus community regarding the occurrence of crimes listed in the Clery Act, preparing the annual disclosure of crime statistics, and so on. The Department of Education’s handbook includes a list of over 60 policy statements that must be in place in order to be in compliance with the Clery Act.
Key Questions to Ask:

- Have you officially designated a Clery Compliance Officer or committee and given them the training, authority, and responsibility to manage compliance with the Clery Act on behalf of your institution?

- Have you set up a clear chain of command with your campus officials that will bring crimes or other emergencies to your attention?

- Do you have clearly articulated emergency response procedures?

- Do you have policies and operating procedures that will allow for timely warnings to be distributed to the campus community in the event a serious crime occurs on campus that represents an ongoing threat to the community?

- Do you have policies and procedures in place that will result in immediate notification of students and others in any emergency situation on campus?

- Does your institution have a system in place to actively gather crime statistics from all CSAs at least once a year?

- Do CSAs understand their responsibilities to report crimes (and suspected crimes), the timing for making a report, and to whom the report should be made? Are you yourself a CSA?

- Are you working with local law enforcement to appropriately gather and report crime statistics?

- Have you reviewed the policy checklist in the Department of Education’s handbook detailing the 60-plus separate policies that institutions are required to have under the Clery Act?

option to identify an individual to be contacted by the institution not later than 24 hours after the time that the student is determined missing in accordance with official notification procedures established by the institution under subparagraph (B);

(ii) provides each such student a means to register confidential contact information in the event that the student is determined to be missing for a period of more than 24 hours;

(iv) informs each such residing student that the institution will notify the appropriate law enforcement agency not later than 24 hours after the time that the student is determined missing in accordance with such procedures; and

(v) requires, if the campus security or law enforcement personnel has been notified and makes a determination that a student who is the subject of a missing person report has been missing for more than 24 hours and has not returned to the campus, the institution to initiate the emergency contact procedures in accordance with the student’s designation; and

(B) establish official notification procedures for a missing student who resides in on-campus housing that—

(I) such department to contact the individual identified by such student under subparagraph (A)(i);
(II) if such student is under 18 years of age, and not an emancipated individual, the institution to immediately contact the custodial parent or legal guardian of such student; and

(III) if subclauses (I) or (II) do not apply to a student determined to be a missing person, inform the appropriate law enforcement agency.

(2) Rule of construction. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed—

(A) to provide a private right of action to any person to enforce any provision of this subsection; or

(B) to create a cause of action against any institution of higher education or any employee of the institution for any civil liability.
